

They Made You the Boss, Now What? A Practical Guide for New Leaders

Congratulations! You have been promoted and you are about to become a leader! But you have no leadership experience and no formal leadership training. What should you do? How do you behave? If you are lucky, you worked for a great leader along the way and learned from them. You may have also learned what not to do from a poor leader. But most likely you will develop your leadership skills the old-fashioned way - by trial and error. This book can help. You will learn how great leaders hire the very best people then remove obstacles and get out of their way - so they can do the exceptional job they were hired to do. You will learn how the very best leaders rely on positive - not negative - reinforcement. And you will learn how the best leaders are egalitarian. All in all, forty leadership principles are outlined in short, east-to-read chapters - forty ways to help you become a great leader.
