

Mysterious Ways: Love Grows in Mysterious Ways in the Bayou

Prayer versus southern superstitions when a woman's husband mysteriously disappears in the swamp on a deer-hunting trip. Andy and June are a young couple who fall in love, but have to persuade her mother Andy will be the son she never had. God and the power of prayer versus southern superstitions in this Christian romantic suspense page-turner as the author spins a tale of love, loss, superstition, pain, heartache, and faith in God. Reviewer Kathy Boswell says, Very good! She never gives up hope that Andy will return to her someday. She puts it all in God's hands like she's done every crisis in her life. She knows He will take care of this for her. Through belief, prayer, hard work, the power of prayer, and God's help, this powerful, moving story is a thought-provoking novel. June's mother thinks her college-educated daughter can do better than a strawberry inspector. Worse, her wild beliefs in superstitions appear almost prophetic when an April flood, accidents, Andy missing, and escaped convicts become life obstacles the young couple must face. Can their love survive the obstacle course placed in their path? Will June get the long, winding road she's always dreamed of? Will love prevail through superstitions, heartache, and pain? June lives for the day Andy will return, but will he? Developed from a prize-winning short story in Southeastern Louisiana University's fiction-writing competition in 1987. The short story was published in their literary magazine and has reappeared in local newspapers and online magazines.
